

2. Greg Cassidy's Western Maryland F7

This was in 2002 at the B&O Museum in Baltimore, and they had just finished a thorough restoration of one of the last Western Maryland F7s to survive. I had to get photos of it, but this is the only one that came out OK. I don't have many locomotive photos. Usually when I'm out railfanning with others I would take photos of the buildings instead of the locomotives (I know-you're shocked). We were given a ride behind it later in the day. I don't remember what the celebration was but it was WM inspired and the museum was showcasing their WM equipment including #236, the latest restoration. Greg Cassidy
