

13. KEN WILSON'S TWIN PINE DECAL

The Twin Pine Lumber Company is a private fictional company named by me in the late sixties. The waterslide decal was printed probably about 1968. The artwork for the logo was hand drawn by my mom, Marjorie Wilson, who was a former commercial artist. The Heisler locomotive is a PFM import from the late sixties and predates their later 65-ton version. This loco was either a birthday or Christmas gift from my parents back in my early years of loving logging models. Ken Wilson
